The gTLD RG reviews the comments on the new gTLD Dashboard at at http://bit.ly/newgtld.
For each gTLD application with At-Large comments, the gTLD RG decides whether or not to draft a formal objection statement directed to that gTLD application on either "limited public interest grounds" or "community grounds" or both.
The gTLD RG publishes final objection statements to gTLD applications in a format ready to submit to the Dispute Resolution Service Provider (DRSP)
Each RALO sends to the ALAC its advice on the objection statements on whether the RALO supports the filing of an objection statement by the ALAC or not.
Objection statements NOT supported by at least 3 RALOs will not be considered by the ALAC.
If the ALAC decides to file an objection statement that was supported by at least 3 RALOs, then the ALAC (with the support of ICANN) files the objection statement to the DRSP before the end of the objection period.

The gTLD RG seeks comments from At-Large regarding gTLD applications.
Comments received from AtLarge are added to the new gTLD Dashboard at http://bit.ly/newgtld where other members of the At-Large community can read and post further comments.
Where the gTLD RG determines that an objection statement is appropriate, the gTLD RG proceeds to draft the objection statement, keeping the At-Large community informed via the gTLD Dashboard.
Each of the 5 Regional At-Large Organisations (RALOs) reviews each objection statement and decides whether it supports the filing of the objection statement by the ALAC
For those objection statements that are supported by 3 or more RALOs, the ALAC decides whether to file such objection statements to the DRSP.
