10) Proposed Goals and Outcomes:	The International Conference on Cyber Conflict (CyCon's) is the leading international conference on cyber war and cyber security. Each year 500 cyber security professionals, academics and students come to Tallinn to listen to industry professionals and government officials (including the President of Estonia) and meet and converse with each other. ICANN corporate has sent their Chief Technology Officer, David Conrad, to attend the meeting the past two years. Despite this, ICANN does not have a high profile at this event. Four years ago I attended this conference and was at a presentation where ICANN was called in one session an intergovernmental organization and in another a division of the United States government. That later statement was made by a General in the United States Army. I corrected the speaker on both occasions. Attendees at this conference have a high year to year turnover. My experience suggests there are very few "regulars" at CyCon; as a majority of attendees are military officers sent there on assignment there appears to be a regular rotation of attendees. I doubt a majority of attendees at CyCon 2016 will have much knowledge about the function or governance of ICANN or its role in running securely the Internet's DNS.
11) Additional Information (optional):	If awarded this CROPP funding I will: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Attend all days of the CyCon meeting. 2. Meet with NCUC Estonian members. 3. Outreach, University of Tartu, Institute of Social Studies, Media Studies
