recommendations that came out of the Brussels meeting, confirming action items necessary to deal with all the elements that were in there. We looked at their importance and urgency, but mainly it was a discussion session to really flesh out what the recommendations entail and what needs to be done for the report.

Today, we're essentially going to continue that. We have some left in [the] document, and some more came in overnight. Then, in the afternoon, we will have a, hopefully with some externals being able to join us on essentially the work plan, discussion on how to adjust that after the technical writer is leaving and now that a new one is being contracted. And the Any Other Business discussion for anyone in the room.

If there is nothing else right now, we would pause the recording and go into work groups.

This Loren for a quick report of the Marrakech face-to-face, Day 2. We were continuing our work on consolidating the recommendations, going through the unfortunately very tricky task to deal with the fallout from the technical writer abruptly leaving the team, which meant that a lot of recommendations and the organization of the recommendations were in a half-done state, which was difficult to resolve.

Furthermore, we discussed the work plan and that this one needs to be extended. But so far, no final version for the list has been created. This will be happening as soon as possible. That's the end of Day 2 and the end of the face-to-face in Marrakech. Work will continue in small groups during the meeting.
