Focus on Community Priority Evaluation (CPE)

Community-based Applications
For the 2012 round of new gTLD applications, applicants were asked to indicate application type: (i) Community-based or (ii) Standard

- Community-based applications were meant to be in service of “communities”
- Must pass initial evaluation as with Standard applications before can proceed

The Initial Evaluation\(^1\) comprises

- Benefit: eligible to participate in Community Priority Evaluation (CPE)
- In event of string contention, may opt for CPE subject to payment of a deposit by a specified date

String Similarity & String Contention
String Similarity Panel is tasked to identify visual string similarities that would create a probability of user confusion, with help of algorithmic score
- Applied-for strings matching existing delegated TLDs, reserved names not allowed
- Care also taken to consider effect of IDN protocols, similarity to IDN ccTLDs

String Contention Sets
- All applied-for gTLD strings are reviewed against one another to identify similar strings which are placed in string contention sets for further evaluation
- So, there must be at least 2 applied-for strings identical or similar to have a string contention set
- There is direct contention and indirect contention to contend with
- Contention sets could be augmented or reduced or eliminated as result of Extended Evaluation or dispute resolution proceeding

What is CPE?
Community Priority Evaluation (CPE) is one of 2 major string contention resolution mechanisms

- Designed to give priority to Community-based applications that score high enough against Standard application(s) in the same contention set
- Prevailing in CPE as against other applications in same contention set grants priority ie it wins outright and can proceed where others in that contention set will not
- If there are 2 or more Community-based applications which opted for CPE and both or all of the prevail in CPE, then being on equal footing, resolution may achieved via Auction (Standard applications excluded)
- In 2012 round, CPE was undertaken by external consultants selected and appointed by ICANN Org (ie a CPE Provider/CPE Panel)
- The CPE Panel relied on a set of CPE Guidelines based on Criteria in AGB in evaluating Community-based applications which opted for CPE

“On the whole, the ALAC welcomes the proposal of “Community Priority Evaluation (CPE) Guidelines” prepared by The Economist Intelligence Unit (EIU). It notes with satisfaction that the EIU has transposed the AGB Criteria into Evaluation Guidelines for what is intended to be an evidence based evaluation process. The ALAC supports the need for comprehensive community assessment to ensure the legitimacy of applicants and the long-term sustainability of their value proposals. Without re-opening the debate on the AGB themselves, the ALAC has several recommendations and observations to make based on the document, which was made open for Public Comment. Our comments follow the structure of the EIU’s Guidelines document for ease of review.”

Feedback on CPE Draft Guidelines: Exec Summary of AL-ALAC-ST-0918-03-01-EN

ALAC’s Sep 2013 Statement on the Community Priority Evaluation (CPE) Guidelines Update from ICANN (Cont’d)

1–A Delineation
- Whilst it is important to establish this criterion clearly, history within the gTLD market has demonstrated that an assessment based on strict metrics alone falls short of expectations.
- Further indicators (markers) should be added to 1A. If there are two competing applicants purporting to represent a “community”, then there should be other qualitative markers that can help differentiate the two.
- There are Communities who need protection through leadership and foresight – and the “clear delineation proposal” in 1-A does not provide such safeguard when comparing Western-based Communities with Traditional Cultures.
- Special care should be taken to protect “traditional knowledge” and “Indigenous Communities” that may not have the technological knowledge and ability to navigate the systems effectively.

1–B Extension
- Whilst we understand the need for a Top Level Domain to be representing the majority of people in a community, “Considerable Size” is a subjective metric, which needs to reflect context that may be diverse.
- There may be community applications from small countries like these island nations where the matter of “considerable size” may differ. The question then arises as to how applications from the Communities of such countries would have any chance of success when compared to applications supported by multi-national commercial entities anchoring a “community” around one of their products?
- Take another example based in Africa: The “Amharic” Community is limited in members and geographic dispersion. It is a linguistic and cultural Community located in Ethiopia. Why should it be given a low score when it is a valid Community?
- As in 1-A, there appears to be absolutely no safeguard for small Community applications if the sole criterion in 1-B is overall extension. The ALAC is therefore concerned that here again a strict arithmetical evaluation will discriminate against small Communities and therefore recommends that there be special consideration when the community is of special interest or endangered.
The ALAC appreciates the care that has gone into defining the Nexus. However, a concern has been raised in the special case of community applications made by a Diaspora and the Diaspora exceeds the original population of a country. Simple examples would be Niue (3500 living in New Zealand vs. 1500 in Niue) or Lebanon (14 million living elsewhere vs. 4.3 million in Lebanon). An application made by a Diaspora may therefore score higher than a local community application in the country of origin. Determining which of the two Communities should be prioritized is a difficult matter.

For a geographic location community TLD, the current Guidelines take the example of Eligibility as applications that impose a geographical restriction for applicants, requiring that the registrant’s physical address be within the boundaries of the location.

The ALAC recommends that the Eligibility criterion be extended to registrants conducting business targeted at the location irrespective of their physical location. This should score better than an unrestricted approach thus the ALAC proposes a three level grading:

- 2 = eligibility restricted to community members
- 1 = eligibility restricted to service provision to community members
- 0 = Largely unrestricted approach to eligibility
4-A Support and 4-B Opposition

- There is neither mention of individuals nor governments as recognized channels or sources of support or opposition. Some individuals may not be part of an institution or organization, but could potentially rally to make an endorsement or objection. Online petitions as well as crowd-sourcing and other forms of virtual Communities do not have the legal framework in place nor the strict hierarchy that this section appears to require for a letter of support or opposition to be endorsed.

- Extra care should be used in 4 – B, where “a group of non-negligible size” is too vague, and without measurable elements, may lead to a non-objective and gamed evaluation.

- The ALAC also re-iterates its concern regarding Community Support and Opposition, that the new gTLD Program has not been advertised enough to Communities worldwide. Evaluators should exercise care in using this criterion particularly when lack of opposition is observed.

- One failure of the ICANN process has been to give not enough time for Communities worldwide to understand their rights in objecting to applications that could be detrimental to their Community. In this respect and in the vast majority of cases, the Objections process at ICANN (and indeed the new gTLD Program altogether) was unknown when the window for Community Objections was open.

- With insufficient notice to the concerned Communities to respond and object, those who understand the mechanics of the new gTLD application process may be the first to respond and lend their support.

- Evaluating the level of Community support or opposition as determined in Criterion #4 is tricky in that support for the applicant will easily be found whilst opposition is less likely to be readily stated since potential opponents are less likely to be involved in the new gTLD Process. As a result, Communities that might benefit more from a specific gTLD, but are not aware of the new gTLD process taking place, will not have the chance of voicing their concerns unless they have been advised in advance of the opportunity to do so.

Community Applications and CPE

"Community applications which end up in the CPE process should be able to trust that the process will be open and flexible enough to accommodate them. The ALAC offers a series of suggestions for improvement:

• The real issue is in ensuring that members of the CPE have a full understanding of the types of communities bringing applications forward and are able to deal with them in a flexible way. Arbitrarily restricted interpretations and limited definitions applied on an ad hoc basis discriminate against valid community applications which do not fit into prevailing assumptions.

• Communities should continue to be given special consideration. The concept of membership must be flexible enough to take into account the fact that geographically dispersed communities often do not have traditional membership lists and should not be penalized for this.

• The CPE process needs to be more transparent and predictable. Details about all the procedures used in decision making must be available to applicants well in advance of the deadline for submissions; background information about CPE participants, including support teams must be fully available to enable conflict of interest oversight; and data/documentation/research materials consulted in decision making must be referenced and released as part of the decision.

• It is important the CPE team include representatives from grassroots community organizations and the ALAC has offered to assist in this task.

Recap: ALAC STATEMENTS have touched on:

- Maintaining preference over non-community based applications in if applicant prevails in CPE
- Need for more transparency and predictability for CPE process, evaluator/panellists
- Improvements to CPE needed:
  - More flexibility in definition of “Community”, “membership”, “association”
  - Clarity on evaluation procedures
  - Grass-root representation on CPE panels
  - Flexibility in evaluating letters of support as some applications and their letters of support might be unconventional

Review of CPE Procedure for Subsequent Procedures

Principles for Proposed Improvements

1. “Fairness”
   - “Fairness” is arguably the most important goal; transparency and predictability are also desirable, but often predicated on “what we know or have experienced”.
   - Any criteria against which evaluation is based upon must incorporate a level of flexibility in order to enable “fairness” to be achieved.
     - Flexibility should be built into both the evaluation criteria and guidelines bound by high level guardrails
   - Prevention of “false positives” and “false negatives” requires correct context – who’s perspective matters
   - One way to try and build-in “fairness” is to have grassroots participation with right expertise, broad perspectives on evaluation panels
     - Ask who would know or understand the nature of how different “communities” are recognized, organized, administered or even developed or galvanized?

2. “Communities”
   - Were Community-based applications not meant to be in service of or for the benefit of “communities”?
   - What do we mean by “communities”? (i)
     - Different interpretations must be allowed for different usage of the term “communities” in the evaluation criteria and guidelines – in some cases, it is reasonable to ask whether the targeted persons or beneficiaries to a “community” can be perceived to relate to the “community” rather than if they are members of such a “community”
     - In particular, priority should be given towards marginalized groups; linguistic, cultural, ethnic groupings, “traditional knowledge” and “Indigenous Communities, even loosely organized but reasonably well-known groups or segments of society; and civil-society advocacy groups
     - Commercial grouping such as trade or business associations, commercially driven social, recreational, sporting clubs, while undoubtedly more defined, organized and well-resourced, should receive no more favor than the ones described above

3. Linked Sub-Criteria & Scoring
   - The danger of using linked sub-criteria is it forces evaluators to score essentially the same aspect and allows bias or prejudice in one sub-criterion to be automatically carried over to another sub-criterion
   - Even the AGB pg 4-9 states, “The utmost care has been taken to avoid any ‘double-counting’ – any negative aspect found in … one criterion should only be counted there and should not affect … other criteria.” This aspect must be upheld.
   - The scoring scale for each criterion should also be reviewed for appropriateness and sufficiency
     - Scoring based on a simple Yes-1 or No-0 should be used sparingly
     - Greater transparency is required as to the use of evaluation questions for scoring
     - Expansion of a scoring scale ought to be considered for criteria and/or sub-criteria which seek to cover a larger range of possible answers and/or where such criteria and/or sub-criteria inadvertently attracts greater emphasis or weight
4. “Double Jeopardy”
- All applications are open to an Application Comment Period when they are publicly posted on ICANN’s website
  - This is when applicants will be given opportunity to respond to comments (and/or Clarifying Questions) submitted by ICANN community / public
  - Unfavorable comments expected to be resolved or addressed voluntarily by respective applicants

- All applications are also subject to GAC Advice, GAC Early Warning, and/or filed Objections
  - Applicants will be given opportunity to respond to or address GAC Advice or GAC Early Warning
  - Objections are resolved through the available Objection Dispute Resolution Procedures (which are in turn dependent on objection type)

- CPE takes place after the above processes are completed. Therefore, under the Criterion #4: Community Endorsement which is measured in equally using sub-criteria A-4 Support and B-4 Opposition, it is important that any opposition which a Community-based application receives for purposes of CPE be neither a regurgitation or reframing of an already-resolved unfavorable comment, or a subject of GAC Advice or Early Warning or an already-resolved Objection, i.e. an opposition must not be “a second-bite of the cherry” to delay or block a Community-based application’s progress.

5. Accountability & Access to Recourse
- As evaluators must be accountable for their determinations,
  - Every determination must contain rationales for each criteria and sub-criteria
  - Evaluators ought to be permitted to undertake some level of independent research to verify the veracity of statements made by the applicant in its application – such research should not be limited to information available on the Internet, but should include consultation with a subject matter expert (if one is absent from panel)
  - Evaluators ought to be encouraged to dialogue with applicant to ensure best possible understanding of statements in application – access to resources, word limits, language barriers all have unintended consequences

- Applicants should be given reasonable access to recourse against unfair determinations, but subject to checks against frivolous appeals
  - Recourse mechanism eg appeals, should be known before hand, and either affordable or attracts financial support for applicants in need (eg applicants that are granted Applicant Support)
  - Procedure must enable applicant to identify and raise any conflict of interest vis a vis any panelist in its CPE panel

Scoring

Existing
- 2= Clearly delineated, organized, and pre-existing community.
- 1= Clearly delineated and pre-existing community, but not fulfilling the requirements for a score of 2.
- 0= Insufficient delineation and pre-existence for a score of 1.

Proposed Changes
- 2= Clearly delineated, organized, and pre-existing community.
- 1= Reasonably delineated and pre-existing community.
- 0= Insufficient delineation and pre-existence for a score of 1.

Evaluation Guidelines

Existing
The following questions must be scored when evaluating the application:

- Is the community clearly delineated?
- Is there at least one entity mainly dedicated to the community?
- Does the entity (referred to above) have documented evidence of community activities?
- Has the community been active since at least September 2007?

Proposed Changes
The following questions must be scored when evaluating the application:

- Is the community clearly delineated? Or is the community reasonably delineated?
- Is there at least one entity mainly dedicated to the community?
- Does the entity (referred to above) have documented evidence of community activities?
- Has the community been active prior to the launch of this application window?

Per: ALAC-2013, EC, OCL, MM, AG, HR, JC

Flexibility in determining “community”

- Fairness – “in who’s perspective” matters
- Priority towards marginalized groups; linguistic, cultural, ethnic groupings, “traditional knowledge” and “Indigenous Communities, even if loosely organized
- Different interpretations must be allowed for different usage of the term “communities” – in some cases, it is reasonable to ask if a group can be perceived to relate to or identify with the “community” rather than if they are members themselves

Per: JC

- Threshold needs updating, also why exclude any groups based on a “deadline” any earlier than the application window?

"Mainly" could imply that the entity administering the community may have additional roles/functions beyond administering the community, but one of the key or primary purposes/functions of the entity is to administer a community or a community organization.

Consider the following:
- Was the entity established to administer the community?
- Does the entity’s mission statement clearly identify the community?

Consider the following:
- Was the entity established to administer or support the community?
- Does the entity’s mission statement clearly identify the community?

Per: JC
- Threshold needs updating, also why exclude any groups based on a “deadline” any earlier than the application window?

Per: AAS, JB
- The phrase “administer the community” isn’t defined in the AGB – should be interpreted loosely and not to mean authoritatively control or exercise control over community.

Criterion #1: Community Establishment; Criterion 1-A Delineation Guidelines

Criterion 1-A Guidelines
Existing
• With respect to “Delineation” and “Extension,” it should be noted that a community can consist of legal entities (for example, an association of suppliers of a particular service), of individuals (for example, a language community) or of a logical alliance of communities (for example, an international federation of national communities of a similar nature). All are viable as such, provided the requisite awareness and recognition of the community is at hand among the members. Otherwise the application would be seen as not relating to a real community and score 0 on both “Delineation” and “Extension.”
• With respect to “Delineation,” if an application satisfactorily demonstrates all three relevant parameters (delineation, pre-existing and organized), then it scores a 2.

Proposed Changes
• With respect to “Delineation”, it should be noted that a community can consist of legal entities (for example, an association of suppliers of a particular service), of individuals (for example, a language community) or of a logical alliance of communities (for example, an international federation of national communities of a similar nature). All are viable as such, provided the requisite awareness and recognition of the community is at hand among the members or the requisite recognition of the community is established by a relevant subject matter or community expert.

Evaluation Guidelines
Existing
With respect to the Community, consider the following:
• Are community members aware of the existence of the community as defined by the entity?
• Do community members recognize the community as defined by the entity?
• Is there clear evidence of such awareness and recognition?

Proposed Changes
With respect to the Community, consider the following:
• Are community members aware of the existence of the community as defined by the entity or a relevant subject matter or community expert?
• Do community members recognize the community as defined by the entity or a relevant subject matter or community expert?
• Are targeted or beneficiary members of the community a recognized segment or grouping of society?
• Is there clear evidence of such awareness and recognition?

If there are two competing applicants purporting to represent a “community”, then there should be other qualitative markers that can help differentiate the two.

Definitions

Existing
- "Size" relates both to the number of members and the geographical reach of the community, and will be scored depending on the context rather than on absolute numbers - a geographic location community may count millions of members in a limited location, a language community may have a million members with some spread over the globe, a community of service providers may have "only" some hundred members although well spread over the globe, just to mention some examples - all these can be regarded as of "considerable size."

Proposed Changes

Evaluation Guidelines

Existing
- Consider the following:
  - Is the designated community large in terms of membership and/or geographic dispersion?

Proposed Changes

Per: OCL, JC

- “Identify” does not simply mean ‘describe’, but means ‘closely describes the community’.

Consider the following:

- In order to receive the maximum score of three points, the applied-for string must:
  1. "identify" the community;
  2. match the name of the community or be a well-known short-form or abbreviation of the community

Per: EC, JB; also FTI Review Report extract (as above)

Flexibility in determining "community"

- Fairness – different interpretations must be allowed for different usage of the term "community" or "community members" – in some cases, it is reasonable to ask if a group can be perceived to relate to or identify with the "community" rather than if they are members themselves; so long as there is no substantial over-reach
- The "OR" suggests two possible paths to scoring a 2 but this was not applied by EIU; panelist should not be permitted to require that the applied-for string closely describes both "community" and "community members", and both paths must remain an option for the applicant to receive 2 points – in the example of "TENNIS", it is unclear who would qualify for a 2 in applying for ".TENNIS"?

Per: JC:

- Difficult to address since highly dependent on facts, applicant’s statements
- Perhaps, the issue of "applied-for string closely describing the community or community members" can only be feasibly addressed from the point of view of being consistently applied across applications and subject to appeal?

Per: OCL

- Again here there is a mix between the need for legal entities and communities other than the one referred to in the application. So a local community might have a problem that it might not be the sole local community in the world using that name - Do we want to open the door to small local communities, bearing in mind this might also lower the bar for fake local communities to apply, or do we want to privilege size of organisation as a warrant for legitimacy?

<td>With respect to “Enforcement,” scoring of applications against these subcriteria will be done from a holistic perspective, with due regard for the particularities of the community explicitly addressed. For example, an application proposing a TLD for a language community may feature strict rules imposing this language for name selection as well as for content and use, scoring 1 on both B and C above. It could nevertheless include forbearance in the enforcement measures for tutorial sites assisting those wishing to learn the language and still score 1 on D. More restrictions do not automatically result in a higher score. The restrictions and corresponding enforcement mechanisms proposed by the applicant should show an alignment with the community-based purpose of the TLD and demonstrate continuing accountability to the community named in the application.</td>
