

I am the Co-founder and Executive Directress of IPANDETEC, a non-profit organization that promotes the use and regulation of ICT and the defense of Human Rights in the digital age, through analysis, advocacy, research, and legislative monitoring of Internet public policies in Central America. Our main objective is analyze the state of Human Rights on the Internet in Central America through Analyze the legal frameworks related to our work areas. Build capacities around these issues. Creation of an active and critical community with an impact on the Internet ecosystem in the Central American region.

I am active Member of Internet Society Panama chapter, Creative Commons Panama network, Core member of Open Knowledge Foundation for Panama. Coordinator of the Panamanian Internet Governance Forum since 2016. Host/organizer of the Latin American and the Caribbean Internet Governance Forum (LACIGF) in 2017. Member of the Board of LACIGF since march 2018. Currently since my organization, we are helping other countries in Central America to incorporate their national Internet Governance Forum and soonly the Central America IGF. IPANDETEC is also a recognized organization by Organization of American States (OAS). Member of ICANN At Large - LACRALO and Global Forum on Cyber Expertise Partner.

The creation of community is one of the most important challenges that we have as digital activists in the region. To cultivate these communities we must listen to each of the groups from their perspective and try to find a common theme that allows us to make a long-term job of interest to everyone.

The main goals of my nomination is working on advocacy strategy between different Central American organizations that are interested in following up Internet public policies with a point of view on human rights and gender in the region and that reinforces the work of their organizations.

The possibility of contributing to the Internet ecosystem in my region: Central America and strengthening the capacities of civil society in terms of public policies, because in our countries, mainly this power is held by governments and companies.
