

Yaovi Atohoun is an electrical engineer and has more than 20 years work experience in Information and Communication Technology (ICT).

He is currently working as Senior IT Officer for the Association of African Universities in Accra (Ghana). He has worked in Benin Republic from 1992 to 2004 respectively for the West African New Agencies Development Project and from 1997 for the USAID Leland Initiative. He traveled to many african countries to conduct training sessions, technical equipment installation and policy discussions related to Information Technology for the Leland Initiative. He is part of a team that assisted ECOWAS countries in setting up the West African Telecommunication Regulators Association

He was the secretary general of ISOC Benin since its recognition in 1999 until 2009. He is currently member of the board of this chapter. He participated in the Internet Society annual events (INET) in Geneva (1998), San Jose (1999), Yokohama (2000) and Sweden (2001). In 2002 Yaovi Atohoun was part of the African delegates in the ISOC-Francophonie meeting in Canada. He was an ISOC ambassador at IGF in Rio de Janeiro in 2007. He took part in the ICANN (Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers) meeting in Lisbon (2007), Mexico (2008), Seoul (2009), Brussels (2010), San Francisco (2010), Singapore (2011). Yaovi Atohoun was the ICANN Nommitation committee member in 2010 and 2011.

He attended AfNOG and AfriNIC meetings in Maputo, Nairobi, Abuja, Rabat, Cairo, Kigali and Dar Es Salam and has chaired its electoral commission in Maputo (2005) and Abuja (2007)