

Gideon Rop is the Project Support Engineer at DotConnectAfrica, an independent, non-profit and non-partisan organization that is based in Nairobi, Kenya where he is involved in strategic project formulation and development.

He is also has keen interest in technology developments and especially internet governance and has been involved as a young person in ICANN activities, contributing as well as writing articles covering the Internet development such as IPv6 and DNS business. Some of his articles are covered in the circleID

He is an ISOC member, who participated in the 2011 Internet Governance Forum (IGF) Workshop held in Nairobi, and most recently in the ICANN Multi-Stakeholder Internet Governance Conference in Addis-Ababa among other regular regional IGF's where he is actively involved in learning and discussing Youth, Content development , Internet governance Issues and new gTLDs.