

IAG-CCT

Conference Call 10

18 June 2014 16:00-17:30 UTC

Matt Ashtiani: Hello everyone, welcome to the Implementation Advisory Group for Competition, Consumer Trust & Consumer Choice (IAG-CCT) Call #10!

Steve DelBianco: I have been booted off the phone twice. Anyone else experienced that?

Ron A: Having some tech difficulties today...

Eleeza Agopian: Yes, I have, too.

Ron A: Me too, Steve. Just dialled back again!

Eleeza Agopian: Can anyone hear me on the call? I'm not hearing anything.

Matt Ashtiani: I as well, I will look into the issue

Mason Cole: Same happened to me but I'm in now

Ron A: My call dropped again... dialing back in!

Ron A: Back now.

Ron A: @ Steve: I think ALAC leadership are under water with their Summit in London this Friday... my guess...

Mason Cole: I agree it's more an issue of choice

Ron A: +1 Michael

Mason Cole: Agree Michael

Nathalie Coupet: +1 Michael

Ron A: Technology changes are surely going to overtake these 3 particular items.

Nathalie Coupet: We should evaluate motivations first, if not, this is not very objective or scientific

Nathalie Coupet: It's big in Japan

Jonathan Zuck: I think we're in an echo chamber today so we should probably just agree to collect the data and move on

Steve DelBianco: the "relevance" is that these QR code metrics were part of the advice from ALAC. Our remit is to assess those metrics.

Ron A: No relevance in my view.

Steve DelBianco: we should hesitate to recommend REMOVAL of a metric that's easy to get, even if we see limited utility and potentially conflicting implications of an increase in QR code use

Nathalie Coupet: Could we have feedback from ALAC in London regarding the merits of these metrics?

Nathalie Coupet: LEA could also give false data if investigation or surveillance are underway.

Steve DelBianco: as we set it aside, lets cite the same reasoning we used for 1.13

CW: Christopher wilkinson has joined the call

CW: apologies for delay

Michael R. Graham: Sorry -- Just joined on adobe.

Mason Cole: that one will be very tough to get from registrars

Steve DelBianco: Q to those proposing these new metrics: can you suggest whether (and how) they are related to Trust, Choice, or Competition?

CW: I may pass concerns on to ALAC if necessary. CW

Nathalie Coupet: Sorry, mistake

Steve DelBianco: 2.6 quantity of registrations in IDN scripts

Ron A: Makes sense to me, Steve. Total number is from now is the baseline. Growth will be easily tracked.

CW: I would suggest that this conversation lacks input from IDN users.

Nathalie Coupet: A question: how can you check in the zone file how many entries there are?

Nathalie Coupet: Who do you ask for this info?

Nathalie Coupet: Thank you

Steve DelBianco: Jonathan is exactly correct about venue for airing Christopher's concerns. We are not making policy here

Steve DelBianco: Even if these abuses are captured in the Economic study, we should not expect that to generate policy changes in real-time. The Affirmation review team will make recommendations for changes as part of their work.

Mike Nelson: Useful call, Jonathan, Eleeza, et al.

Charla Shambley: I will be sending out an invite for your calendar.

Ron A: I apologize in advance for my absence in London due to Nom Com. good call today!

Nathalie Coupet: Thank you all!

Steve DelBianco: Good work as chair, Jonathan