

Max Zhang - Statement of Interest

My name is Max Zhang and I am an international liaison of Beijing Internet Institute with its focus on Internet infrastructure, Internet governance, IPv6, Internet-related policies, and Internet specifications, DNS and SDN, etc. In the BII lab, I am responsible for some international communication, liaison, translating, interpreting, coordination and some assistance work to the team director Davey Song. I work with Davey Song, also from the BII lab, on the same team for the research of Internet protocol prototype, measurement, testbed, public Internet standard and policy development.

My interest is in the Internet technology and policy regarding Internet governance as well and stewardship transition. My interest in this WG (Enhancing CCWG-Accountability Implementation and Work Stream 2) is to keep an eye on and get an understanding of the multi-stakeholder model of ICANN and stewardship transition. I only represent myself to be an observer in the WG. My specific interest is to get an understanding the diversified participation across the world in IANA transition and related issues.

My primary country of residence is China PRC.
