

Roelof Meijer is CEO of SIDN, the registry for .nl, The Netherlands' Country Code Top Level Domain. He joined SIDN in 2005, when he was tasked to professionalize SIDN and enhance its national and international position. Under his guidance, SIDN developed into one of the worlds largest, safest and most succesful ccTLDs, with over 5,5 million domains registered, a turnover over EUR 20 million and 80 staff.

Meijer has extensive international experience in C level management, professionalization, strategic change and corporate restructuring.

Previously, Meijer was Managing Director at PTC+, an international training organization operating training facilities in The Netherlands. He joined PTC+ in 1996 as Director of one of its training facilities and held that post until his appointment as Managing Director of the company.

Before joining PTC+, Meijer worked as engineer, project coordinator, technical consultant and government advisor for an engineering company and later the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Zambia and Burkina Faso respectively.

Meijer holds a Masters degree in Engineering of Wageningen University.