Raoul Plommer: Bolo Bhi means 'Speak up', in Urdu. We are a not-for-profit geared towards advocacy, policy and research in the areas of gender rights, government transparency, internet access, digital security and privacy. We are a team of individuals with diverse backgrounds who are passionate about the same causes and believe it is crucial to bridge the gap between rights advocates, policy makers, media and citizens. It is by bridging this gap that one can move ahead to chart a way forward and resolve issues through consensus.

Raoul Plommer: looks good to me

Raoul Plommer: it's about nuclear energy and arms.. :o

Raoul Plommer: no sorry, space systems and nuclear energy

Raoul Plommer: I see that none of them have elaborated at all

Raoul Plommer: but I guess they CAN'T

Gangadhar Panday: <http://www.associationaepf-tchad.com/>

Raoul Plommer: well, that sounds totally legit. I don't want to be a snag.

Gangadhar Panday: I opened it in Google, used option 'translate into English'

Raoul Plommer: rstreet sounds good as well

Raoul Plommer: So I'm fine with all of them. Let's just remember to change the URL of that Tchad one
