| i. Do the membership, leadership and internal mechanisms described in the application correspond to those exposed on the website? |
| YES: \(\sqrt{x} \) NO: \(\) |
| Staff question: I see no area on the Nicaragua section on the IEEE website where you mention | leadership names. Could you please briefly explain the mechanism between your section and IEEE regarding membership, structure and leadership? The link you sent to the IEEE roster requires a username and login, which I do not have.

Applicant response: IEEE has today more than 429,000 members in 160 countries or sections, which are divided, in 10 different regions of the world. IEEE Nicaragua adopts the same bylaws and governing policies as IEEE headquarters. These can be found in the constitution document of Nicaragua section and IEEE bylaws. IEEE is basically formed by volunteers, and leadership positions change every two years in every country. IEEE members can also be appointed to be an At-large member of different committees as part of the Member Geographic Activities MGA or Board of Directors. Information about leadership names in Nicaragua website will be updated soon since the start of a new period 2015-2016.

Staff question: You also sent a link to Region 9. Could you briefly explain the hierarchy between R9 and IEEE Nicaragua, and the main interactions between the 2?

Applicant response: Nicaragua belongs to Region 9, which include all countries in Latin America and Caribbean. R9 has a roster of volunteers who follow activities in these countries and promote technical events. R9 reports to IEEE Board of Directors HQ and provides training to section officers.

Additional Information provided by the applicant: "CAPANA council gathers all IEEE Sections and countries from Central America and Panama. You can find more information about our roster, history and objectives:
