

Brenda Brewer: Welcome all to CCT Review Safeguards & Trust SubTeam Meeting #7 on 28 April.

Please note, this call is being recorded.

Eleeza Agopian: GOod morning. :)

K: K is Karen Lentz - trying to fix it in the pod

Gaongalelwe: good day!

Drew Bagley: Good morning all

Pamela Smith: Thanks, Karen!

Pamela Smith: I can fix it for you.

Drew Bagley: What do we press again to mute and unmute the phone?

Brian Aitchison: *6

Drew Bagley: Thanks!

Brian Aitchison: np

Karen Lentz: thank you Pamela!

Pamela Smith: Gao, I enabled a mic for you.

Karen Lentz: call dropped, redialing

Gaongalelwe: thanks Pam

Carlos Raul Gutierrez 2: sorry

Carlos Raul Gutierrez 2: lost the bridge

Carlos Raul Gutierrez 2: i'm back

Margie Milam: yes-- we'll follow up on that

Jonathan Zuck 2: good question Jamie. Good answer Lauren!

Jonathan Zuck 2: cost benefit will end up being the key

Francisco Arias: home and corp

Francisco Arias: mail

Jamie Hedlund: Well no planes fell out of the sky as some predicted

Jonathan Zuck 2: @Jamie, but preventing the high risk strings probably prevent some costly implications if no loss of life

Jonathan Zuck 2: and since we're measuring "trust" we're not confined to the high bar that was set at risk to life

Jamie Hedlund: absolutely, just some perspective on the claims made before the protections were put in place

Jonathan Zuck 2: exactly

Laureen Kapin 2: In terms of action items on name collisions; please include protection measures , including instances of "controlled interruption" and studies referenced by Francisco

Jonathan Zuck 2: let's just find the best ways to measure these effects. Thanks!

Carlos Raul Gutierrez 2: mine was going to be VERY short

Francisco Arias: hank you, all. I

Francisco Arias: Thank you, all. I'm leaving the phone bridge now.

Pamela Smith: Thank you for your time, Francisco.

Carlos Raul Gutierrez 2: Gracias Francisco

Brian Aitchison: Have to drop now but thanks. I'll also be presenting on the DNS abuse report on our next call

Jonathan Zuck 2: Thanks guys

Pamela Smith: Our pleasure. Thanks for joining the meeting, all!