

Adobe Connect Chat Transcript – Competition and Consumer Choice SubTeam Meeting #10

Brenda Brewer: Welcome all to Competition and Consumer Choice Subteam Meeting #10 on 25 May @ 13:00 UTC!

Brenda Brewer: Today's call will be recorded. Reminder, when not speaking, please mute your phone by pressing *6. To unmute, press *6 again. Thank you!

Jonathan Zuck: can you enable microphone?

Brenda Brewer: yes!

Jonathan Zuck: thanks

Jordyn A Buchanan: Can I get some microphone too?

Brenda Brewer: mic on!

Eleeza Agopian: It's quite early for the west coast team. :)

Jordyn A Buchanan: I'm on the West Coast too today.

Alice Jansen: early birds!

Eleeza Agopian: Ah...welcome to dawn!

Jonathan Zuck: Hey folks, don't know how long you're staying in DC but I have a photo exhibition opening on the 8th...just saying ;)

Eleeza Agopian: I saw your post online -- at Tryst, right? I'd love to attend!

Megan Richards: can't you advance your opening jonathan so that we can see your great photos ? :-)

Waudu Siganga: Jonathan are you a reknowned photographer?????

Alice Jansen: he is very talented!

Megan Richards: should be well known if not already !!!

Waudu Siganga: Third party endorsements come in handy

Jonathan Zuck: I was actually thinking of asking if I could move it up but that would mean displacing another artist so probably not

Megan Richards: could someone give us an overview of yesterday's meeting that I couldn't attend ?

Megan Richards: ok thx

Eleeza Agopian: Megan, are you referring to the call w/CENTR? (there were a few calls yesterday.)

Megan Richards: I meant the call on application and evaluation

Eleeza Agopian: got it. Thanks.

Jonathan Zuck: working on a database with Eleeza to make it easier to get to these

Waudu Siganga: Basically they are small registrations

Waudu Siganga: .NYC has the highest number of registrations at .nyc 77,036 which accounts for only 0.43%

Megan Richards: language and script I think

Dejan Djukic: The market based on language is defined by spoken language in countries and territories. It includes all IDN gTLD delegated strings and ASCII strings written by letters of English alphabet but in language other than English. The last excludes string which represents brands and products oriented to international market.

Jonathan Zuck: why the geographic component. Wouldn't languages be worldwide?

Megan Richards: the problem I have raised before is that some of these are not in English. also agree with Jonathan re countries and regions which I have raised

Megan Richards: not "written" in English it should say

Waudu Siganga: market based on language will definitely transcend geo boundaries

Jordyn A Buchanan: Megan, what do you mean by "some of these are not written in English"?

Megan Richards: I mean all the accents etc which are used in different languages which I understand classifies them as IDNs - e.g German, French

Megan Richards: etc

Megan Richards: not to mention all the other scripts of course

Jordyn A Buchanan: Correct, something in an "extended Latin" script would probably all qualify as not English.

Megan Richards: ok

Jonathan Zuck: yep

Dejan Djukic: sounds ok

Waudu Siganga: ok

Brenda Brewer: If 310xxx8566 is your number, please identify name. Thank you!

Alice Jansen: What deadline would you like to set for comments on project list, Jordyn?

Megan Richards: thx

Waudu Siganga: I think you summed it well Eleeza

Megan Richards: centr' data is based on its members

Waudu Siganga: There's one in Africa as well

Jordyn A Buchanan: And Asia/Pacific (APTLTD)

Megan Richards: there are other regional organisations which should theoretically be able to supply for their regions if they gave the data

Waudu Siganga: AfTLD in Africa

Waudu Siganga: Ill contact AfTLD

Dejan Djukic: LACTL also

Megan Richards: a burglar ? :-)

Megan Richards: apologies but have to leave for another meeting

Jonathan Zuck: meetings over when Megan leaves

Kaili Kan: Thank you all! Bye!

Jonathan Zuck: thanks Jordyn

Eleeza Agopian: thanks and see you soon.
