Ayden Férdeline:hi all

Ankur Raheja:Hello All

Benny Samuelson / Nordreg AB:please enable scroll on document

Ayden Férdeline 2:Hi. Just a quick question, if a document does not specifically reference the RDS, how should we capture it? Should we reasonably extend these so to be relevant for the RDS, or should we only capture the general principles raised in the source document? Thanks

Greg Shatan:muted
Kathy Kleiman:requirements or possible requirements?
Lisa Phifer:possible requirements
Ayden Férdeline 2:thanks Lisa
Chris Pelling::p
Holly Raiche:Good question Kathy
David Cake:Yes. Good point Kathy.
Kathy Kleiman:To reflect for future chat readers: "actual requirements" today for Whois may be "possible requirements" for tomorrow's RDS
Lisa Phifer:docs that seem to be gaps because they were identified as significant:
Lisa Phifer:SAC051
Lisa Phifer:A29 WP on procs for handling conflicts with law
Lisa Phifer:A29 WP 203 3/2013
Lisa Phifer:A29 WP 217 4/2014
Lisa Phifer:Final EU 2016/679 of EU Parliament (new DP reg)
Lisa Phifer:EU DP directive (1995)
Richard Padilla:@lisa I will pick up A29 WP 203 3/2013
Kathy Kleiman:I'll be happy to take A29WP 203 3/2013 - which is related to what I am currently working on.
Lisa Phifer:Greenleaf book/article
Holly Raiche:And the other point (arising from SAC 54 - is to look beyond the RAA so see what else may be 'required' or a least 'collected'
Fabricio Vayra:I'll take A29 WP on procs for handling conflicts with law
Richard Padilla:ok will take the A29 WP 217 4/2014 instead
Ankur Raheja:@lisa My first document is complete. Please sign me up for WHOIS New gTLD URS Policy and Rules for URS Policy. Thanks
VAIBHAV AGGARWAL:Can V Send an Email with just the List so that selection vS Interest is a conscious decision andrew sullivan:Note that we could specify mandatory fields and also ones that registries _may_ provide if they wish andrew sullivan:a nice thing about any modern protocol for this sort of service is the tolerance for unknown fields
Ayden Férdeline 2:@Vaibhav Just to clarify - are you asking that we send a message to the list before we allocate these documents?
VAIBHAV AGGARWAL:Yes Please
VAIBHAV AGGARWAL:Self Consultation is a welcomed idea
Ayden Férdeline 2:We have had these documents circulating on the list for the past two weeks already... if people want to volunteer to take them now, I think that's great...
Holly Raiche:@ Andrew - true - and I don't think we can go beyond what people MUST do - but the data collected may still be covered by various data protection regimes

Kathy Kleiman:I think you may have volunteers for almost all the 8 now

Lisa Phifer:I think still missing EU DP directives (old and new), Greenleaf book/article, SAC051

Jim Galvin (Afilias):I'll do SAC051

Greg Shatan:I can do EU DP Reg 2016

Ayden Férdeline 2:7 June seems reasonable to me

Farell FOLLY:ok for me

Holly Raiche:I can do SAC 054 earlier than that.

Farell FOLLY:ok

Holly Raiche:Do we need the Greenleaf book within a week.? IIsn't the context for the book looking at various data protection laws globally?

Lisa Phifer:@Holly, Greenleaf book or article about trends - not sure what needs to be extracted, perhaps someone from the privacy subteam can weigh in Greg Shatan:We now have 3 Gregs in this group. There oughta be a law....

Kathy Kleiman:@Greg - try being a Kathy :-)

Rod Rasmussen:Greg is in transit (air) at the moment.

Holly Raiche:@ Lisa - what specifically do we need from the Greenleaf publication? He is often at the UNSW lawfaculty and I can have a chat with him for information if that helps

Holly Raiche:I'll have a chat with them

Sana:I'll do 95 directive

Kathy Kleiman:Tx Chuck

VAIBHAV AGGARWAL:@Kathy Excellent Q & @Chuk "Applause"

Kathy Kleiman:Can we get control back to the document on the screen?

Kathy Kleiman:Tx you!

Ayden Férdeline 2:@Holly - Greanleaf in his (lengthy) book talks about privacy laws in Asia. He begins by mentioning how in Europe there are binding treaties on data protection and supranational courts which can make binding decisions on privacy and data protection. Then he pivots to Asia where he says there are no equivalent international agreements or empowered deliberative bodies. So the European approach to privacy and data protection is very much top-down, whereas in Asia it is bottom up, with national laws the starting point. The other issue he raises is that not all countries in Asia have strong democratic institutions. It's an interesting book but very, very lengthy... if you are going to meet with him it might be helpful to ask if he knows anything specifically about WHOIS, as his book (to me) was more about how to evaluate/compare privacy laws

Holly Raiche:I have already bashed his ears about the Whoisissues - but will have another chat on these issues

Ankur Raheja:Thanks

Chris Pelling:Thanks all :)

Fabricio Vayra:thanks, Chuck!

Richard Padilla:Ok folks later

Sara Bockey:thank you all

Ayden Férdeline 2:thanks to all

Vlad Dinculescu:Thanks All

Maryan Rizinski:Thanks everyone, bye

Kiran:Thanks

andrew sullivan:bye!

Greg Shatan:Bye all!
