

I posted my first website on November, 16, 1995 and have been an active member of the internet community since. I am a social investing advisor, economist and forecaster. I worked as a community member on the recently completed Internet Governance Forum meetings in Washington, DC and have, for the past several years, been a public observer at the Annual and Spring Meetings of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank Group. I am not affiliated with either organization, however.

With the changes in IANA and ICANN administration of key assets comes a responsibility to be truly representative of all internet communities and individuals. I seek to bring a public interest-centric perspective to the Board Member Selection proceedings, one that attempts to make this need for a broadened perspective a reality.
