Julie Hedlund:That sounds fine -- thanks!

Phil Buckingham:rubens - you are very faint . Could you speak up

avri doria:idoographic cs. non ideographic

avri doria:?

Phil Buckingham:me too - re headphones . but still faint

avri doria:might want to consider adding ", if any" at the end of the stmt.

Cheryl Langdon-Orr (CLO):good point Avri

avri doria:i think we need two reading, both on calls to close a consensus call.

Cheryl Langdon-Orr (CLO):yes the rationale is important on this proposed recommendation

Phil Buckingham:this is a catch 22 , since the technical costs/ so contractual relationship with the backend provider will need be incurred and the costs put in the financial model for evaluation .

Cheryl Langdon-Orr (CLO):thx Avri

Phil Buckingham:no audio

Phil Buckingham:thanks Cheryl

avri doria:wee have to learn to speak again on AC. hard to do i know, i almost forgot how.

Steve Chan:@Phil, we are happy to provide a dial out if you'd care to join!

Phil Buckingham:point taken , Avri

Steve Chan:If I recall, part of why every application was considered individually overall was related to principles of fairness? Kurt would probably be able to fact check that statement.

Kurt Pritz:I have a bad connection. and did not hear the question

Kurt Pritz:can you repeat. ? or skip me?

Phil Buckingham:Totally agree Kurt. and nobody knew who was going to apply , how many portfolio players would submit multiple applications using the same model

Rubens Kuhl:Kurt, that was Steve question from the chat above.

Cheryl Langdon-Orr (CLO):chat above from Steve

Phil Buckingham:the financial model was templated / standardised . It wont work for Round 2 . Each applicant's financial model needs to treat separately , evaluated , due diligence accordingly

Phil Buckingham:Agreed Alan . Alot more .

Steve Chan:@Rubens, I tried to note that the report acknowledges those challenges to some degree, but apparently i made that point ineffectively

Steve Chan:So not just about inefficiency...
