

Samantha Dickinson

Samantha Dickinson is a writer and Internet governance consultant at Lingua Synaptica, with expertise in analyzing and explaining Internet-related issues under discussion at ICANN and at intergovernmental forums including the ITU, CSTD and UNGA. She live tweets Internet governance meetings and is followed and read by a wide range of Internet governance participants from the Internet technical community, civil society and the business sector, as well as by government representatives and technology journalists from around the world. Currently, she has particular interests in enhanced cooperation, WSIS+10, and the ongoing development of multistakeholder participation in Internet governance.

Work for ICANN (past and present):

- Support for IANA Stewardship Transition work (early documentation for ICG, later ICANN blog updates on transition progress & tweeting of IANA-related discussions at ICANN meetings)
- Drafting of 2016 activities report for CCWG-IG
- ICANN Community Document Development and Drafting Resource Pilot Program
