1	Hard-coding specific fields that don't exist in all countries is not good.	9/16/2017 12:25 PM	Tarvainen
2	I am happy with City/Province	9/15/2017 7:25 PM	Peddemors
3	even in advanced industrial societies the treatment of site (home, office) locators is changing with (for example) unique Civic address codes and/or community postal boxes. what is needed is a field for contact, which my be other than a street address.	9/15/2017 7:14 PM	Lanfranco
4	I would suggest taking it but realistically not published for the whole world to see. Some countries may permit these to appear. I would however caution to keep it hidden and these are things that GDPR, even in the US and South Africa need explicit permission for. But taken with consent and preserved.	9/14/2017 5:40 AM
5	It must "support" the collection of this data element - but for the avoidance of doubt, this is not to say I support its collection being mandatory.	9/13/2017 10:17 AM
6	Postal address are not as reliable as before, especially in developing countries where we are encouraging more domain name businesses.	9/13/2017 5:55 AM	Akinmoyeje
7	Support is fine.	9/13/2017 1:50 AM
8	with allowed N/A in cases where, State/Province or Postal Code is not available for the entity due to postal system or the way local regional division is implemented	9/13/2017 1:19 AM

1	The phone field must be vastly improved in a future RDS to better display numbers from outside the US for instance	9/16/2017 3:26 PM
2	Again, I think the RDS must be able to support varied contact data, these are just two examples	9/16/2017 7:40 AM
3	the mode of phone service is in flux and one may well have a URL but no phone, or only a proxy phone.	9/15/2017 7:14 PM Lanfranco
4	Again i think it is important to have a verifiable and contactable phone. But for the same reasons of privacy what is in the RDS must not be explicitly publsied.	9/14/2017 5:40 AM
5	It must "support" the collection of this data element - but for the avoidance of doubt, this is not to say I support its collection being mandatory.	9/13/2017 10:17 AM
6	Phone numbers are relevant and efficient means of contacting anyone.	9/13/2017 5:55 AM
7	Supporting these fields is fine.	9/13/2017 1:50 AM
8	where the Registrant Phone Ext can be optional to fill	9/13/2017 1:19 AM
