Michelle DeSmyter:If you would like me to dialout to you, please let me know, I can certainly dial you

Karen Day:Good evening all

Christa Taylor:unique

Cheryl Langdon-Orr (CLO):Sorry to be late in the AC room, I have been listening for a while via the phine bridge...

Justine Chew:Apologies for being late.

Steve Chan:FYI, Sophia was just speaking to slide 8

Michael Flemming:Can anybody hear me

Kristina Rosette (Amazon Registry):no

Christa Taylor:no

Michael Flemming:>.<

Michael Flemming:What is it today

Michael Flemming:ok

Michelle DeSmyter:I will dial back out to him

Michael Flemming:I will come backc

Kristina Rosette (Amazon Registry):very faintly

Michael Flemming:So with that, we are limited to enhancing contractual compliance in our remit. But this area could be explored, for example, through the RPM Working Group or the Registry Agreement.

Michael Flemming:Registry Agreement subject.

Justine Chew:Do we have reported cases on "undesired" practices? Then we can analyse why they happened.....

Justine Chew:Sounds logical, Michael. So are we proceeding with liaising with Compliance for data?

Michael Flemming:Alan has a comment

Michael Flemming:I think its worth exploring to at least ask

Compliance if they have received those complaints.

Michael Flemming:It is likely that it is out of scope

Justine Chew:I agree with you, Alan. Which is why Compliance should be able to tell us what non-compliance has taken place.

Michael Flemming:Yes

Justine Chew:And taking it further if necessary, to see if there has been some "unintended consequences" of not providing for terms in the RA. Although this may be a stretch.

Kristina Rosette (Amazon Registry):Let's not get ahead of ourselves.

Justine Chew:@Kristina, a stretch, I realise.

Michael Flemming:I think it would be worth to hold off on asking RPM Group. It is a resource if we need it.

Michael Flemming:Asking compliance for the data would be the best first step

Cheryl Langdon-Orr (CLO):Makes sense Steve Yes,

Michael Flemming:We can come back to it

Emily Barabas:We are now on slide 11

Michael Flemming:Does anyone have any questions on the data provided back by ICANN?

Emily Barabas:We are now on slide 14

Michael Flemming:Slide 15 now

Cheryl Langdon-Orr (CLO):As we are aiming for predictability I would think we should ensure timeliness

Cheryl Langdon-Orr (CLO):Sorry in a noisy environment ATM

Cheryl Langdon-Orr (CLO):Thank you Sophia and Michael, Thank you everyone, good progress made in today's call. Bye for now talk again soon.

Christa Taylor:Thank you.

Kristina Rosette (Amazon Registry):thanks.
