

Questions for URS Practitioners

Introductory Note: The purpose of the following questions is to elicit useful information from those counsel who have filed or responded to a claim under ICANN's Uniform Rapid Suspension System ("URS") for use by the ICANN Rights Protection Mechanisms Working Group. The RPM WG has been tasked with reviewing the URS to determine what changes, if any, should be recommended to ICANN to improve the URS as an RPM. The purpose here is not to relitigate or critique any decision, attorney work product or stakeholder position, but to generally learn from those who have experienced the process through your observations from personal knowledge of the URS' perceived benefits and burdens and any compelling bases for change.

Moved (insertion) [1]

Moved up [1]: ~~<#>~~Yes, it should be lowered – please explain the basis for your position: _____

Commented [MOU2]: Greg Shatan: Question 1 doesn't account for the fact that there are two mechanisms for proving use. There will be no way to distinguish between a practitioner who believes both methods are inadequate and a practitioner who believes one method is adequate and the other is not. However, there are too many combinations of levels of agreement on one and disagreement on the other, and which is the one you agree with, that it would be unwieldy to have the combination options each laid out separately. It would be far better to have one question about each type of use. I suggest that Q1 be deleted and replaced with a question that allows the practitioner to respond separately regarding each type of evidence of use. We already have a question about the SMD file but not one about submitting a declaration and a specimen (which is a problem in and of itself, in terms of survey design). Also, Question 1 also doesn't align with the text of the rules and procedures, which refer to "evidence of use" not "proof of use." As well, the Questions 1 and 2 are flawed — under the Rules and Procedures, both a declaration/specimen or an SMD file are adequate evidence of use. The question is whether they should be adequate evidence of use as set forth in the Rules and Procedures.

Commented [MOU3]: From George Kirikos: shouldn't there be something with regards to the response fees, appeal fees and/or other fees, instead of just filing fees by complainants? For example, at NAF, the types of fees are on page 9 of their supplemental rules: <http://www.adrforum.com/resources/URS/URS%20Supplemental%20Rules.pdf>
