Michelle DeSmyter>Welcome Kathy!

Kathy Kleiman:What was teh original questions?

Kathy Kleiman:I'll have to dial in

Kathy Kleiman:can you give me persmission to speak via adobe audio?

Kathy Kleiman:Sorry all, let me type

Kathy Kleiman:I don't think the question in the survey and the question in the original are the same

Kathy Kleiman:One is a yes no (which will be yes)

Michelle DeSmyter:Kathy - if you need a dialout, please let me know, I will send you a private chat in a moment

Kathy Kleiman:One is asking for evidence/information/insight

Kathy Kleiman:please go ahead to michael

Lori Schulman:I am not sure. I am getting confused.

Kathy Kleiman:Agree with Susan

Lori Schulman:I am back on track. Sorry for confusion. Doesn't the open text option give the evidence?

Kathy Kleiman:Thoughts from Stacey and Greg?

Lori Schulman:Maybe in "open text" option add "If no, please add evidence or if yes, please add evidence?"

Kathy Kleiman:Greg/Stacey - can we use this an information gathering -- evidence gathering?

Lori Schulman:I think a scale might work.

Kathy Kleiman:I agree - instead of a scale - evidence

Stacey Chan - Analysis Group:Yes, we can certainly guide the open text fields toward providing evidence

Lori Schulman:@Kathy - agree about evidence. I thought scale might be more readable but if evidence is goal, then we need specifics not "temperature"

Lori Schulman:Susan - thanks for explaining.

Susan Payne:hurrah!!
