

I have spent the past nine years working for corporate, reseller, and retail registrars in roles including customer service, account management and sales, legal counsel, .brand registry advisor, registry relations, and global head of compliance and vendor management. With help from European counsel, I have advised registrars on GDPR compliance and implemented GDPR compliance strategies. I have managed an ICANN compliance team for a family of corporate and retail registrars with millions of domain names under management. I'm now Director of Internet Policy and Industry Affairs at MarkMonitor, focused on helping the world's largest companies protect their customers and their intellectual property on the Internet, including through the ICANN Intellectual Property Constituency and the International Trademark Association Data Protection Committee. I'm honored to be the IPC's Alternate for this EPDP.
