16:12:39 From Sivasubramanian M to Everyone:

@Steinar What are the transfer records maintained by the RegiSTRY? Who is the Registrant for icann.org? When was icann.org first registered? Who was the first Registrant? How many times was icann.org transferred? Who were the Registrants at various points of time? Who is the current Registrant?

16:15:07 From Bill Jouris to Everyone:

@Siva, it will be interesting especially if the current Registrant is NOT currently an ICANN employee. Or, at least, the contact information is an ICANN mailbox that currently gets checked regularly

16:19:51 From Olivier MJ Crepin-Leblond to Everyone:

16:24:50 From Greg Shatan to Everyone:
 Olivier, whois.godaddy.com resolves to <https://www.godaddy.com/whois>. I believe they are essentially the same thing in terms of site architecture (i.e., third level domains).

16:24:55 From Olivier MJ Crepin-Leblond to Everyone:
 so the email address is a general email address that will not change with time

16:25:14 From Bill Jouris to Everyone:
 @Olivier, thank you

16:25:34 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 I think we need to do a lot of research on the 60 days inter-registrar lock. It has been the subject of a lot of discussion over the past 20+ years in previous PDPs.

16:25:39 From Olivier MJ Crepin-Leblond to Everyone:
 whois.godaddy does not resolve --- they missed out ".com"

16:26:08 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 Transfer disputes refer to 60 day lock

16:26:26 From Amrita Choudhury to Everyone:
 what is the rationale of 60 days?

16:26:47 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 To prevent things like cyberflight

16:26:59 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 And to verify contact information, billing, etc.

16:27:04 From Amrita Choudhury to Everyone:
 Will that be resolved in 60 days?

16:27:30 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 Yes, but 60 days is now enshrined in things like the transfer dispute resolution policy

16:28:22 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 Before having this discussion it is Vital to review the entire record of the 20+ years of transfer policy discussions

16:28:27 From Chokri Ben Romdhane to Everyone:
 Hi all sorry for being late

16:28:28 From Amrita Choudhury to Everyone:
 I understand that 60days is now a standard, but there should be a specific rationale not because it is there historically

16:28:40 From Justine Chew to Everyone:
 60 days lock is the result of industry experience

16:29:01 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 @Justine - now it is more than tha

16:30:09 From Justine Chew to Everyone:
 @Jeff agree,

16:30:24 From Greg Shatan to Everyone:
 @Olivier, in the example you pasted in the chat , it reads: whois.godaddy.com.

16:30:35 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 My rule has always been that if you can not show a demonstrable problem with the current practice, then you do not make a change

16:31:10 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 Some have called that the "Neuman Rule" :)

16:31:18 From Amrita Choudhury to Everyone:
 Agree to the logic Jeff

16:31:29 From Amrita Choudhury to Everyone:
 if there is no issue why tamper with it

16:31:37 From Michael Palage to Everyone:
 Historical note - the 60 day window did NOT exist at beginning of the original Registrar test bed period, it was put in at the request of Register.com as a way of Registrars being able to retain the domain name and recoup its loss if there was credit fraud. This originally had nothing to do with protecting Registrants - but Registrars commercial interests.

16:32:04 From Amrita Choudhury to Everyone:
 Thanks for the insight Micheal

16:33:15 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 Agree with Mike, but since then it has been used for a bunch of different purposes.

16:33:19 From Gopal Tadepalli to Everyone:
 Tks. I will try to improve the audio. - Dr. T V Gopal

16:33:23 From Steinar Grøtterød to Everyone:
 Point taken, Lutz

16:34:14 From Chokri Ben Romdhane to Everyone:
 transfer per registry data, will be useful to decide whether the 60 days is minimal period or we should be reduced

16:34:39 From Michael Palage to Everyone:
 @Jeff - not disagreeing with how it has "evolved" I was just noting its original intent - I find it comical.

16:35:07 From Augusto Ho to Everyone:
 Buenos días, Harold Arcos solicita que lo llamen

16:35:14 From Michael Palage to Everyone:
 @Justine - not proposing a change - just providing a historical data point

16:36:28 From Sivasubramanian M to Everyone:
 If banking delays across borders is a concern for Registrants, then not only the 60 day lock, but also the convention that the Registrant pays for an additional year of Registrant irrespective of the date of renewal for the domain to the new Registrar could also be removed

16:37:29 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 Absent a compelling reason to change, I do not believe there should be a change

16:38:38 From Sivasubramanian M to Everyone:
 @Jeffrey Who decides if there is a compelling reason? I am the one who paid ten dollars, it is my name.

16:38:47 From Greg Shatan to Everyone:
 Following Jonathan's point: If one were to design this today, I think the affirmative confirmation would be the primary method of avoiding fraud along with a much shorter hold period.

16:39:14 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
 We as a policy community determine whether there is a compelling reason

16:40:08 From Gopal Tadepalli to Everyone:

Some ball park number which is a working approximation will help smooth and legitimate follow - up in case of delays. Presently 60 day is working. More research is always welcome if the projected gains are significant. For "epsilon" or small gains it may not be pragmatic to perturb a large system like the one we are working with. - Dr. T V Gopal

16:40:11 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:
Same problem

16:40:14 From Sivasubramanian M to Everyone:

@Jeffrey That would be fair for the community to broadly decide what constitutes a compelling or reasonable reason, provided the community is balanced.

16:41:25 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:

And who determines what "balanced" means?

16:41:38 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:

So, we look to data.

16:42:29 From Sivasubramanian M to Everyone:

@Jeffrey That requires an elevated conversation, way beyond the scope of this WG :)

16:42:31 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:

Without data of transfer complaints, technical issues, etc., its hard to establish a compelling or reasonable reason

16:42:36 From Lutz Donnerhacke to Everyone:

No, it's a global issue

16:42:36 From Alfredo Calderon - ICANN73 Mentor to Everyone:

Lost his audio.

16:42:45 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:

I had same issu

16:42:49 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:

16:43:00 From Yesim Saglam to Everyone:

Yrjö - please let me know if you need a dial-out

16:56:53 From hadia Elminiawi to Everyone:

slowly though

16:57:11 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:

I thought I asked for the demo ;)

16:57:18 From hadia Elminiawi to Everyone:

Call times will be increased to 90 minutes

16:57:45 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:

I think the group has been working well and seems balanced

16:57:47 From hadia Elminiawi to Everyone:

Thank you Justine

16:59:12 From Gopal Tadepalli to Everyone:

24 November is my wedding anniversary. I will not be joining the meeting on that day. - Dr. T V Gopal

16:59:30 From Jeffrey Neuman to Everyone:

Happy Anniversary!

17:02:30 From Jonathan Zuck to Everyone:
