The Internet Society provides the global community with leadership on issues concerning the Internet in and around public policy, education and standards, and technology. With an aim to further advance the activities of Internet societies in Bangladesh. Internet Society (ISOC) Dhaka Chapter has been chartered with Internet society on July 20, 2011, and certified structure for At-Large in ICANN 2014 as an At-Large Structure (ALS).

ISOC Bangladesh Dhaka chapter is a community of Civil society, Academia, Technical, journalists, and government people, especially who are related to public policy, education, standards, and technology in Bangladesh. This community works on a voluntary basis and not for profit interest. The community objective is to work together with various ranges of actors to build awareness and skills, conduct operational research, training & workshop, and participate policy development process through open, transparent, and collaborative processes for establishing the "Internet is for everyone".
