Javier RÚA-JOVET: that picture is heavily photoshopped. I am not that thin or that happy in real life

Evan Leibovitch: Not just me, Eduardo is in that photo too!

Joly MacFie: I t would be nice to give some formal NARALO recognition to Darlene.

Peter Knight: Glenn: Short description of Broadband in Brazil (praise by 7 Brazilian and international specialists, including Vint Cerf) This book brings together 23 specialists to analyze the current state of broadband Internet service in Brazil, public policies and regulations, challenges relating to expanding access, and case studies of entrepreneurship and both public-public and public-private partnerships to meet the challenges identified. The authors hope their contributions can help stimulate a needed debate on the strategic role of broadband in promoting Brazil's technological, economic, and social progress.

Gisella Gruber: William Cunningham has joined the call

Peter Knight: Excellent presentation, Glenn

Evan Leibovitch: Ah. I thought the last day was spent with people frantically trying to trade in obsolete banknotes

Joly MacFie: A11yNYC & A11y Chicago and ISOC-NY and ISOC DSNC are collaborating on a Beyond the Net funding application to implement define best practices in making accessible meetups. It is hoped that when the ISOC Chicago Chapter is rejuvenated it will join in.
