9	At-Large Intercultural Virtual Workshop What you need to know when working in an intercultural organisation? Working within ICANN can be challenging, for staff as well as for the numerous volunteers that form this international organisation. Collaboration across the globe and over various time zones, the different perspectives you have whether you participate as an employee or as a volunteer and last but not least often it is the lack of understanding for each other's cultural background and behaviour which are a source for conflicts. The good aspect is, that the ICANN community has all the sources to overcome intercultural misunderstandings, we just have to talk and to listen to each other. This interactive workshop shall help to understand each other's challenges. We will explore the "secrets" of our different cultures on some dedicated examples such as: 1. Verbal communication (speed, tone, irony, volume) 2. The art of small talk 3. Time sensitivity 4. How to dress 5. Eating manners 6. What is expected from a community leader? 7. How work hierarchies in your country and which effect they have at your performance at ICANN? ... just to name a few We will start with a topic related to communication and would like to experience in a first workshop: "The Art of Small Talk" Questions to be discussed are inter alia: • What are do and don'ts in a small talk? • Which topics you should never touch? • How important, or less important, is small talk in a region for building trust or just as a matter of politeness? • How sensitive is a culture with regard to speed, tone, irony, volume? • How do you approach a person you would like to get to know? This workshop addresses the worldwide At-Large Community. We will reach out to At-Large Members from each region asking them to present their local traditions, rules and behaviours. Presentations shall be short while and creative. They can include for instance slides, videos, cartoons ... If this initial workshop is a success, we should organise follow up sessions on the other topics and introduce the format to the wider ICANN Community.
